

ANAHEIM CONCERT THEATER, ANAHEIM, CALIFORNIA

The Anaheim Concert Theater is a prototype for a new generation of entertainment facilities. Seating 5,000 patrons, the theater combines the intimacy of a small venue with the drawing power and production capabilities of a world-class theater or arena. The stage house and auditorium is embedded in a forty-five foot high base enclosing support spaces. The base is wrapped in a precast concrete panel skin which acts as a curtain concealing the interior. Along the length of the wall, the curtain is drawn aside at many places to hint at the variety of entertainment and activities which can be found within.
