

GENETICS COMPUTER GROUP PROFESSIONAL OFFICES, MADISON, WISCONSIN

This scientific firm that develops sequence analysis software for use by molecular biologists around the world needed more space for its growing staff. In addition to open-plan work space for employees and a training lab, a new main entrance and corporate reception area were created. An employee breakroom with meal service capabilities and a mail room were also added. A new monumental stair in the reception area connects employees on separate floors and unifies the work environment.