

HURLEY, BURISH AND STANTON, MADISON, WI

HURLEY, BURISH AND STANTON, MADISON, WI

A new partner with a thriving arbitration practice helped to propel this firm into high gear and new, larger quarters. Because arbitrations include meetings with each party in a separate conference room and the attorney shuttling between them, we located the conference rooms at opposite ends of the office, so the parties paths wouldn't cross. This meant that clients move deeper into the office than is usually the case, so the high-level lobby finishes are carried deeper, too.

