With a change of ownership, this high-tech data research firm took a fresh look at its Chicago operations. After reviewing its options, the company decided to restack and renovate its 6 story 130,000 loft building in the west Loop. The scope of work, which is carried out one floor at a time as the building remains occupied, includes extensive infrastructure upgrades, new office furniture systems and HVAC systems. The lobby, which was originally designed in the 1970s, was completely remodeled.
