The expansion of this high-tech data research firm required a build-out of additional office space to be completed on an extremely tight schedule. The 98,000 square feet of new space occupies four 24,500 square foot floors in a new high-rise in the West Loop. All four floors were constructed in ten weeks. Working drawings, prepared in three weeks, included the design and coordination of HVAC, electrical, plumbing, security, and teledata systems, as well as the integration of 300 furniture system workstations.
