After more than a decade of serving Silicon Valley clients, Valerio Dewalt Train and Associates opened VDTA West in San Jose in 2006. What began as an effort to better serve our clients, soon evolved into the launch of a Palo Alto office complete with three full-time professionals.

By mid-2008, VDTA West was growing along with some of the biggest corporations in Silicon Valley. After a short time of uncertainty in 2009, VDTA West was expanding again. With long-standing relationships providing increasing opportunities and new clients presenting even more, there quickly became a need to hire. We now have projects from Seattle to San Diego.

By February of 2010, our staff in Palo Alto reached an all-time high and our original office was just a little too dense. So, we packed up and moved a few blocks away to the other side of town - a five minute walk in these parts.

We currently have a staff of ten professionals in Palo Alto, backed by 50 architects in Chicago to serve our west coast clients. This includes over 20 LEED accredited professionals and many very talented architects. VDTA West is moving and growing...

Please stop by some time. We would love to show you around!
